A Letter from the Executive Director

Dear fellow traveler,

The cover photo is of the Gilded Age Foote's Mansion (now the Loyola Jesuit Center-page 27) located in Morristown and is one of the places where we offer historic walking tours that focus on life at the turn of century when more millionaires lived within three square miles of the Morristown Green, more than in any place in America! This story is just one of hundreds that we like to share about why it is meaningful to visit Morris County.

Executive Director Leslie Bensley

Giants of American history came to stay including George Washington, Gustav Stickley and the celebrated political cartoonist Thomas Nast (visit Macculloch Hall to learn more – page 27). In that spirit, I invite you to come visit and get a dose of inspiration along with some much-needed rest and relaxation with a trip to hip and historic Morris County.

Inside this guide you will discover enough information to keep you busy for a day or weekend. Every season offers something new and unique to explore. To keep you fed and rested, our guide directs you to great food and welcoming accommodations for every budget.

Morris County is easy to get to; keep us in mind when you are ready for your next road trip!

Happy travels,

Leslie Bensley, Executive Director

Please bear in mind that you will need to double-check that your intended destination is up and running again.

MORRIS COUNTY

at a glance

Morris County was named after Colonel Lewis Morris,
Governor of New Jersey in 1738-1739,
the year the county was named.

Few places have experienced the kind of boom in popularity that Morris County has had over the past few years. People love it – and for good reason.

From arts to farms to business to lifestyle,
Morris County's 39 towns have something for everyone.

7 Featured Towns

1. Morristown

You might think having Manhattan only 30 miles away would overshadow an area, but even with its large commuter culture, Morristown holds its own. Thousands of people flock to Morristown for dining, entertainment, shopping, socializing and enjoying its many arts festivals throughout the year. In addition to being the county seat, Morristown is the home of the historic Morristown Green, several early American historic museums, the Morristown Medical Center and cultural institutions like the Mayo Performing Arts Center (MPAC).

2. Morris Township

Morris Township, named for Colonial Governor Lewis Morris, was founded in 1740. Its history and development runs the gamut from farming to wealthy suburbs, within its borders. Many Gilded Age estates survive as popular destinations such as the Frelinghuysen Arboretum, Fosterfields Living Historical Farm and The Morris Museum.

Craftsman Farms
Parsippany

3. Parsippany-Troy Hills

Parsippany-Troy Hills regularly earns a spot on The Best Places to Live in the United States lists. Established when it split from Hanover Township in 1928, its ancient history dates back at least 6,000 years, as evidenced by its petroglyph sites. Parsippany gets its name from the Lenni Lenape word parsipanong, which means “the place where the river winds through the valley.” Here you will find one of Morris County’s national historic landmarks - The Stickley Museum at Craftsman Farms.

4. Boonton

The original Village of Boonton (dating back to the mid-1700s) sits under the Jersey City Reservoir. Modern-day Boonton began in 1829, during the construction of the Morris Canal and development of the New Jersey Iron Company. Boonton served as a crucial stop on the Underground Railroad and is home of the world famous Boontonware. While the vaudeville theaters, historic hotels and trolley cars of twentieth-century Boonton have now been replaced with restaurants and high-tech companies, Boonton still retains all of its quaint charm.

Chester Borough

5. Chester, Chester Borough

With its picturesque Main Street and scenic rolling hills, Chester captures the hearts of many visitors. Chester and the surrounding Chester Township date back to 1799. Visitors love its quiet village life and quaint country charm, which has been preserved and protected by the Historic Chester Business Association and municipal ordinances that have dedicated open spaces to prevent any encroaching suburban sprawl. Chester has over 100 small, independently owned stores, and offers a variety of annual events that delight visitors every season.

6. Washington Township and Long Valley

Long Valley, an unincorporated community within Washington Township, was originally known as “German Valley” thanks to its original settlers from Saxony, Germany back in 1707. A group of German Protestants traveled with their Dutch counterparts to the New World in search of religious freedom but opted to forego their original plan to settle in what is now New York City once they discovered Washington Township’s stunning farmland. Later on, Schooley’s Mountain (America’s earliest summer resort) attracted vacationers for its mineral springs and iron-rich waters, reputed to heal all types of ailments.

7. Wharton

Wharton (once called Port Oram) was a stop on the famous Morris Canal, which stretched from Phillipsburg to Newark, transporting anthracite coal from Pennsylvania to the Hudson River. Today, Wharton is home to Picatinny Arsenal, which has been an important army research and development center since 1880. The town’s namesake, industrialist Joseph Wharton of Philadelphia, founded The Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania.

Historic Morristown Walking Tour Map

1. Morris County Tourism Bureau

6 Court Street

Morristown was originally settled around 1715, when iron was discovered in surrounding hills. There are 700 buildings downtown listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Today, the Tourism Bureau offers maps, brochures, coupons, tours, programs and gifts.

2. Morris County Courthouse

Court Street

Built in 1827, this is the county's third courthouse, and one of the best examples in New Jersey of a public building in the Federal style. For many years, bells rang from the belfry to signal the start of court and to alert the town in case of fire. The wooden Lady Justice above the front entrance holds a scale to symbolize the fairness of the judicial system and a sword to represent the protection of individual rights. Note she is not blindfolded. Court Room One has been preserved to look as it did in 1827.

3. First Baptist Church

51 Washington Street

While Morristown's second oldest congregation was established in 1752, this marks the church's fourth building. Built in 1892, the church was originally located on the Green, where it served as a smallpox hospital.

4. Arnold's Tavern Plaque

20 North Park Place

A plaque marks the former site of Arnold's Tavern, built in 1764. It served as Washington's headquarters during the winter of 1777. On this spot, George Washington issued his proclamation requiring all people in America to pledge allegiance to the new country.

5. Patriots Memorial Frieze

1 N. Park Place & Speedwell Ave.

Twelve medallions along the upper part of the Century 21 Department Store building feature founders and important citizens of Morristown. Five of the twelve medallions depict persons interred in the Presbyterian Church Burying Ground across the street. Among those featured are Reverend Timothy Johnes, Jacob Arnold, Jacob Ford, Jr., Alfred Vail, Silas Condict and Tempe Wick.

6. Morris Frank and "Buddy" Statue Island between N.

Park Place and E. Park Place

The statue, by famed artist J. Seward Johnson, is of the founder of The Seeing Eye, Morris Frank, and his dog "Buddy". The Seeing Eye is located in nearby Morris Township and was North America's first dog guide school, established in 1929. The statue was placed near the Green in 2005.

7. Presbyterian Church and Burying Ground

57 East Park Place

Morristown's first congregation, founded in 1733, is the final resting place for 138 American Revolution soldiers. Around 1,500 of the cemetery's 1,700 gravestones date prior to 1850.

8. Morristown Green Park Place

The 2.62 acre Green dates back to 1715. It was first used as pastureland before becoming a military parade ground during the American Revolution. The Green is one of only two surviving historic greens in the state.

9. Sansay House

17 Dehart Street

Private

Monsieur Louis Sansay, a Frenchman from Santo Domingo and a local dance teacher, built this house in 1807. From 1872 to 1880, it was the home of General Joseph Warren Revere, a Civil War Brigadier-Commander and Paul Revere's grandson.

10. General Porter House

1 Farragut Place

Private

Built between 1880 and 1890 by General Fitz John Porter, the General Porter House is a Victorian with Colonial Revival design and Queen Anne details. Many of the home's original details have been preserved – like its unusual bay windows facing Macculloch Avenue and stone carriage step.

11. Admiral Rodgers House

40 Macculloch Avenue

Admiral C. Raymond Perry Rodgers was the superintendent of the U.S.

Naval Academy from 1874 to 1878. He built this Victorian home in the Gothic Revival style in 1852. The house's wisteria plants were a gift from Commodore Matthew C. Perry, who embarked on a historic 1854 expedition to Japan that opened up trade routes.

12. Macculloch Hall Historical Museum and Gardens

45 Macculloch Avenue

This Federal-style brick mansion (built from 1810 to 1819) is the oldest brick structure in the town still on its original foundation. The home's gardens are the oldest in Morris County – and are possibly the origin of the Jersey tomato. Six generations of the Macculloch family lived in this home.

13. The Kedge

49 Macculloch Avenue

Private

This brick and shingle home (built by Henry Miller between 1870 and 1880) was originally intended to be a summer cottage for the Macculloch and Miller families. A “kedge” is a small anchor – a nod to Henry Miller's career as a U.S. Navy commander.

14. Villa

Fontana-Nast House 50 Macculloch Avenue Private

The Thomas Nast House was built in 1865 in Second Empire style and later renovated with neo-classical Victorian additions. Famous political cartoonist Thomas Nast lived here with his family from 1872 to 1902. Nast created the iconic images of Santa Claus and the Republican Elephant, and popularized the Democratic Donkey, Columbia, the Tammany Tiger and Uncle Sam through his artwork.

15. Vail Mansion

110 South Street

Theodore Vail, President of AT&T and the chief architect of the Bell System, was the cousin of Alfred Vail. He commissioned this marble and granite Italian Renaissance building in 1914 for his art collections. In 1922, the building became Town Hall. Famous for its bronze doors, the Vail Mansion is now home to the Jockey Hollow Bar & Kitchen.

16. St. Peter's Episcopal Church & Graveyard

South and Miller Streets

Construction on this Gothic Revival style church began in 1897 and was completed 24 years later. Inside, you will find Tiffany glass, a Spanish rood screen and English-made bells. The graveyard has unusual table-top gravestones once serving as picnic tables for visiting relatives.

17. Morristown and Morris Township Library
1 Miller Road

The Library and Lyceum (opened in 1878) hosted popular speakers like Mark Twain, Henry Ward Beecher and Woodrow Wilson. When a fire destroyed the building in 1914, it was rebuilt in Gothic Revival style to match St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

18. Wood Farmhouse
83 South Street

Private

Several generations of the prominent James Wood family lived in this late 18th century home. In 1825, the Marquis de Lafayette stayed here while visiting as the "Nation's Guest."

19. Dr. Lewis Conduct House

51 South Street Private

While living in his 1797 Federal-style home, Dr. Lewis Conduct introduced a new smallpox vaccine to the country by inoculating his daughter on the front steps. Dr. Conduct served as the first President of the Morris County Medical Society and gave the welcome address to the Marquis de Lafayette during his visit.

20. Church of the Redeemer

36 South Street

This Gothic Revival Church (built in 1917) is made up of a Norman Gothic church, a two-story Parish House and a 12-room rectory. William Duer and Alfred Vail served as its first church wardens.

21. The Schuyler-Hamilton House Museum

5 Olyphant Place

This 1760 colonial home of Dr. Jabez Campfield, a Revolutionary War surgeon, is brimming with connections to George Washington. Dr. John Cochran, Washington's personal physician, lived here. Alexander Hamilton, Washington's aide, courted his future wife when she was a houseguest.

Focus on Historic Speedwell

A National Historic Landmark

Walk in the footsteps of innovation by touring
Historic Speedwell - "Birthplace of the Telegraph."

This National Historic Landmark Site, operated by the Morris County Park Commission, preserves what remains of the Homestead Farm of Stephen Vail and proprietor of Speedwell Ironworks.

333 Speedwell Avenue, Morristown

1. The most significant building at Historic Speedwell is the Factory Building, a National Historic Landmark. Here Stephen Vail's son, Alfred, worked with Samuel F.B. Morse to conduct the first successful demonstration of the telegraph on January 11, 1838 to the public.

2. The two inventors transmitted a message through two miles of wire; the message came from a county judge who wrote, "A patient waiter is no loser," on a piece of paper. Three floors of hands-on, interactive exhibits take you through the development of the telegraph and to its connections to modern telecommunications.

3. The L'Hommedieu House was relocated from its original site elsewhere in Morristown. The gambrel roof and recessed doorway now lead to the Friends of Historic Speedwell Gift Shop and an exhibition and orientation space.

4. The Vail family lived in the Vail Homestead from the 1820s to the early 20th century. The furnishings provide excellent insight into 19th century life. Portraits of Stephen and Bethiah Vail, painted by Samuel F.B. Morse in 1837, are among the artistic highlights.

973-410-5300

When Methodist minister Reverend John Hancock died, his will stipulated that the Hancock family cemetery (created in 1849) be opened to the public. By then, Hancock was a well-known member of the State Legislature and credited as the "father" of Methodism in this area. Six generations of Hancocks are buried here, along with 500 early Florham Park settlers (many of whom helped establish Madison's Methodist Church and Drew Theological Seminary). The cemetery is located on a small hill west of the Hancock House and historic cider mill.

Historic Speedwell

333 Speedwell Avenue, Morristown, NJ 07960
morrissparks.net ★ 973-285-6550

This seven-acre National Historic Landmark has established its place in world history several times over. It was here in 1838, at the start of the Industrial Revolution, that Samuel F.B. Morse and Alfred Vail demonstrated a perfected electromagnetic telegraph to the public. The Factory Building ("The Birthplace of the Telegraph") is now a three-story, interactive telecommunications museum. Stephen Vail, proprietor of the Speedwell Iron Works from the early to mid-1830s, completely renovated his family estate in 1844. The home's original furnishings, period antiques and artwork make it easy for visitors to picture the Vail family's life back then.

Morristown National Historical Park

30 Washington Place, Morristown, NJ 07960
NPS.gov ★ 973-539-2016

Morristown National Historical Park consists of four non-contiguous areas: Washington's Headquarters, Fort Nonsense, Jockey Hollow, and the New Jersey Brigade Area (which includes the Cross Estate and Gardens).

1. FORD MANSION AT WASHINGTON'S HEADQUARTERS

The well-preserved Ford Mansion was originally built in 1772. It served as General Washington's military headquarters for six months during the winter of 1779-80. Today, visitors can tour the mansion and grounds to view the home's intricate furnishings and astounding 18th century décor much as it was in Washington's days.

The Ford Mansion is one of the park's two original structures. This historic mansion is set on 16 acres of land along with the Washington's Headquarters Museum.

WASHINGTON'S HEADQUARTERS MUSEUM

The winter of 1779-80, the most severe of the century, brought great suffering to the Continental Army in Morristown. General Washington demonstrated his leadership by holding the army together and creating a cohesive, united front. It was one of his greatest triumphs, and history fans can learn all about it at Washington's Headquarters Museum through an introductory video and four exhibit galleries, including the new interactive "Discover History Center."

2. JOCKEY HOLLOW VISITOR CENTER

There are approximately 27 miles of walking trails in beautiful Jockey Hollow. The staffed visitor center has a furnished full-scale soldier hut display, information on the natural aspects of the park, and a large wall mural depicting the 1779-80 encampment. Visitors can then hike up to the replica soldier huts to see them in person.

The 1750 Wick House in Jockey Hollow is the second of two original structures in the park. The Wick House is set up today just as it was when it served as the headquarters for Major General Arthur St. Clair in the winter of 1779-80.

3. FORT NONSENSE

Washington's troops built this fort in the spring of 1777, on what was then called Kinney's Hill. Its purpose was to protect the main roads leading north and south in order to preserve Morristown as a military storehouse. Seven exhibits and a small monument now commemorate the structure, which was never used as a fort.

4. CROSS ESTATE GARDENS

Entering the impeccably landscaped gardens of the Cross Estate is like going back in time – to the early 20th century, in fact, when Julia Appleton Newbold Cross hired landscape architect Clarence Fowler to redesign this serene property. Experience the grandeur of a lifestyle that no longer exists by walking through these formal, walled gardens. Take the path bordered by mountain laurel and stroll beneath the wisteria-covered pergola for a perfect afternoon.

Mount Hope Historical County Park

75 Teabo Road, Wharton, NJ 07885
morrisparks.net ★ 973-326-7600

Morris County once had vast reserves of high-quality iron ore that were mined from deep, large caverns. Mining at Mount Hope started in 1710, making it one of the oldest mining areas in Colonial America. For the next 270 years, mines throughout Rockaway Township were worked almost continuously, with the last mine operating until 1978. The northeastern section of Mount Hope Historical Park has some of the earliest commercial iron mine remains, while the southwestern section has the remains from the 20th century. Visitors can sign up for a guided tour of the area to learn more about the land and this industry.

Mount Tabor was established in 1869 as one of the state's early Methodist summer camp meetings. Over time, the area evolved into a neighborhood of permanent, fanciful Victorian residences and colorful gingerbread houses forming an historic district that is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The Mount Tabor Camp Meeting Museum is set in the Richardson History House, a unique triple cottage originally built in 1873. Visitors step back in time as soon as they enter this charming townhouse-style building, which gives a glimpse of what life was like during summer camp meetings. Guided walking tours of the historic district are available by appointment.

The iconic Red Mill is set next to the South Branch of the Raritan River and surrounded by the 1848 Mulligan Quarry which was operational until 1963. Set on ten acres, most of the quarry structures remain with a few historical additions to complete the village. The Red Mill was built around 1810 as an industrial mill and has served several roles, including a wool processing plant, a peach basket factory, and a textile mill. It is now a museum that is part of the Red Mill Museum Village and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Owing to its spectacular location, the mill is one of NJ's most photographed sites.

Schuyler-Hamilton House

5 Olyphant Place, Morristown, NJ 07960
NJDAR.org ★ 973-267-4039

Several Revolutionary names came through the 1760 Schuyler-Hamilton House (originally the Jabez Campfield House), but it is probably best known for the love story of Alexander Hamilton and Betsy Schuyler - A Match Made in Morristown! During the winter of 1779-80, the household included Dr. John Cochran, who was assigned to General Washington. Dr. Cochran's wife knew her niece Betsy had met Hamilton the previous summer, so when she learned he was stationed at Washington's Headquarters, she had her niece move in. By April, she and Hamilton had done enough courting at the Campfield House to "reach an understanding." Since 1923, the house has been owned and preserved by the local Daughters of the American Revolution. Visitors can learn about Colonial-era medical practices inside the doctor's office. The museum has several antiques, paintings and historical memorabilia on display.

The Morristown Green has been the heart and soul of Morristown since it began appearing on maps in 1715. Over the course of its fascinating 300-year history, The Green has been a military parade ground, a jail, a public execution ground and common pastureland, but today it is best known as a favorite gathering place for Morristown residents and visitors. Several statues within the park depict Morristown's historical importance. One features George Washington, Alexander Hamilton and the Marquis de Lafayette meeting to discuss the French tall ships King Louis XVI of France sent to support the fight for independence. Another serves as a memorial to the Civil War.

The Presbyterian Church in Morristown

57 East Park Place, Morristown, NJ 07960
pcmorristown.org ★ 973-538-1776

The Presbyterian Church in Morristown began as a gathering place along The Morristown Green in 1733. King George II of England issued the church a charter in 1738 and by 1742, Reverend Timothy Johnes was enlisted as its first pastor. When a smallpox epidemic broke out during the Revolutionary War, the church served as a hospital. A window in the church sanctuary depicts the time George Washington received the Sacrament of Holy Communion during an outdoor service. In 1816, the church deeded land to the Trustees of the Green for the purposes of creating a common area, which is now the Morristown Green. The graveyard, which was officially founded in 1733, has 1,640 interments on record dating back to 1731, including 71 Revolutionary War soldiers.

How did Gen. George Washington fool the British to believe he was going to attack the Redcoats in New York in August 1781? He baked bread. Some 3,000 loaves a day in a 65-foot-long shed he ordered his troops to build for the multiple brick ovens in Chatham. Washington, who stayed in Chatham for three days that month, sent three regiments to guard and help the bakery staff, giving the appearance of an imminent attack. Instead, Washington and between 2,000 to 3,000 troops made their way to Yorktown, Virginia, where the Continental Army defeated General Cornwallis in October 1781. Huzzah!

Crossroads Of The American Revolution

101 Barrack Street, Trenton, NJ 08608
revolutionarynj.org ★ 609-633-2060

Over 500 farmlands, hillsides and homesteads in New Jersey played a part in the American Revolution. History buffs will enjoy comprehensive and unique insights into the state's role in the Revolutionary War by visiting the collection of state-wide heritage sites that make up the Crossroads of the American Revolution.

Dover Area Historical Society

55 West Blackwell Street, Dover, NJ 07801
dovernjhistory.org ★ 973-361-3525

In its heyday, Dover's economy soared thanks to manufacturing of iron, fabrics, hosiery, mill works, machine shops and more. Visitors can still see Dover's wealth of diverse architecture and grand homes, but there are some surprising hidden parts to the town's past – like its rich vaudeville history. The Dover Area Historical Society has worked tirelessly to protect, preserve and recognize the town's historical structures while celebrating its lesser-known history. By appointment.

Downtown Denville

downtowndenville.com

Downtown Denville, recently voted the number one downtown in Morris County, is a charming destination featuring unique shops and boutiques, award-winning restaurants, spas and fitness centers, and professional service providers. Featuring free parking, a quaint atmosphere, and the characteristics of a real Main Street, downtown Denville is a great destination.

Florham Park Historic Preservation Commission

111 Ridgedale Avenue, Florham Park, NJ 07932
973-410-5300

Throughout Florham Park's transformation from a rural farm settlement to a modern suburb, one famous building has withstood the test of time: The Little Red Schoolhouse.

This classic early American schoolhouse has stood at the town's crossroads since the borough itself was little more than two dirt roads. The Florham Park Historic Preservation Commission oversees the beloved 150-year-old schoolhouse and the Hancock Cemetery.

Hanover Township Landmark Commission

1000 NJ-10, Hanover, NJ 07981
hanovertownship.com/303/Landmark-Commission
973-428-2500

Among the Hanover Township Landmark Commission's jobs is to restore and repair historic gravestones, like those in the famous Whippany Burying Yard. Preserving the oldest cemetery in Morris County, which dates back to 1718, is the Commission's pride and joy. Whippany was the first village established in Morris County, so this is where a number of the county's firsts happened, including the first school, the first church, the first military company and the first industry (the "Old Iron Works" iron forge). Whippany dates back to 1676 and was first settled in 1685.
